Description :

Prsentation de l'diteurHow do you explain hearing steps beside you all the way, for four kilometers, up a hilly, curvy, bare path, when you cannot see anyone, try as you might, and it is not even midnight? How can a skinny girl of fourteen hurl grown wrestlers around, swear in a guttural tone and eat a tub full of raw flour?

Why does a grown man run all the way back from the forest and tell about meeting a sexy woman in the middle of the night? Why do five teenagers cower all night long in a cave, hearing things that could never be? Why does a heavy trap door in the floor that needs two hefty men to pull it open, bang open and shut all by itself? What does a medical doctor find his landlady doing, that he needs to be exorcised? Why do four people in four different rooms in two different houses hear the same voice at ten pm, and then hear the news at dawn? How can a man meet and greet visitors who came to attend his funeral? Why cannot a girl even think of wearing womens clothing, unless she wishes to die? What happens when a friend visits another, but is too late?Read about these and feel the goose bumps, for these stories really happened, to credible people.Perhaps one day, there may be a branch of science devoted to the study of the supernaturalPrsentation de l'diteurHow do you explain hearing steps beside you all the way, for four kilometers, up a hilly, curvy, bare path, when you cannot see anyone, try as you might, and it is not even midnight?
